It matte ed little then to the historian what might be a king's private character, provided Le made his nation formidable by its brute strength and full treasury. Even if he was a bad man they enlogized him as a good ruler. Peter Leof Russia is called Peter the Great because he transformed a barbahous into a sembarbarous nation. But no one can now read the following summary. of his character without a feeling of discuss. Voltaire, in his "Philosophical Dictionary," says that "Peter was half hero and half tiger." Macaulay declares that "to the cad of his life he lived in his paince like a hog in a sty, and when he was entertained by other sovereigns never falled to leave unquivocal proof that a savage had been

Peter, when the fit was on him, lit grally caned everybody—from his cook to his counselor, from the meanest pensant to the highest noble—sparing neither age nor sex. But all this flog ging was in the way of recreation When Peter "meant business," it was a more serious matter. Incredible as it may seem, it is nevertheless well authenticated that one of his own sistems, it is said more than one—received. ters—it is said more than one—received 100 strokes of the whip on her back in the presence of the whole court.

In 1713 Alexis, his only son who out ived infancy, was for some offense of no great seriousness several times for purel in the presence of the diabolical father and in the end died either from he effect of the torture or by assassi the effect of the torture or by assassi-antion. For sympathizing with Alexi the Princess Golftsyn, the bosom com-panion of the Empress Catherine, was publicly whipped by soldiers. For the same reason the brother of his first wife, Eudoxia—whom he had thrown into prison—was tortured and then torn in pieces on the wheel. Nothing ever told of Nero is more horribly gro-tesome than this, yet this man, or montesque than this, yet this man, or mon-ster rather, is paraded before the world as Peter the Great.

SUCCESS THOUGHTS.

The best in others will only come out The man with an idea has ever hanged the face of the world.

One reason why we do not make the most of the winning material in our-cives is because of a magnified iden of the great superiority of others who do things in the world.

As a rule no good comes from criti-cising others. Anybody can do that, but the man who can accept his own honest estimate of himself and resolve to profit by if has achieved something No matter what you are doing, think your way. Don't go without thinking. Think everything out. Don't run without a schedule. Have a programme and go by it. Think! Think! Think.

Mr. Noble's Promise Given.

In the carly stages of his ministry the Rev. Mr. Noble preached for some time in a village in Maine. "Have you any pins?" she asked. The woman had none, but passed the uery on, and in a little while every assenger was feeling along concealed dges and turning back lapels. At last sixteen pins were produced. Fourteen of them were contributed by men.

Early Railroading.

In the pioneer days of railroading it as sometimes necessary for the reight conductor to run forward over the roofs of the cars to shout orders to the engineer. Traveling at night was generally avoided, though one road adopted the expedient of running ahead of the locomotive a flat car loaded with sand, on which a boufire was kept burning as a headilght.

CONTROLOUS BLOOD RUSON KING OF ALL DISEASES

To Contagious Blood Poison rightfully belongs the name King of all Diseases. It is the most powerful of all human aliments—corrupting every part of the body and wrecking and running the lives of those unfortunate enough to contract it. When the first sign appears in the form of an insignificant sore or ulcer, few persons realize that the deadly virus has entered the blood; but so potent is the poison that one drop will vitate and pollute the purest and healthriest blood, and in a short time the degrading and horible symptoms begin to appear. The mouth and throat ulcerate, the glands in the neck and groins swell, the hair and eye brows fall out, copper-colorel spots appear on the body, and in the latter stages of the disease the poison even works down and destroys the bones. No other disease is so highly contagious, and many have contracted it and suffered its awale consequences through a friendly hand-shake, handling the clothing of one afflicted with it, or drinking from the same vessel. S. S. S., The King of Blood Purifiers, is the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It goes down into the circulation and forces out every particle of the virus. It is nature's antidote for this peculiar poison, and cures the disease in all its stages, and cures it permanently. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up any of the poison to break out in future years, but so completely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates it from the blood that no sign pletely eradicates

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN

Stone & Mercer.

The origin of soap is a mystery, but we have many evidences of its antiquity. It is mentioned at least twice in the Bible under the name of borith at a period corresponding to several centucies before Christ. In the Louvre in Paris there is an interesting old vase of Etruscan manufacture whose age is computed at about 2,500 years. It is interesting in connection with our subject as bearing a group of children in relief who are engaged in blowing bubbles from pipes. Though we must not overlook the fact that certam vegetable fulces are capable of being used in blowing bubbles, it is for many reasons more probable that soap of artificial manufacture was employed for the purpose, in the unearthed city of Pompeli, the preservation of which has been the means of revealing to us many antique customs, there is to be seen a soap manufactory, with all the kettles and other paraphernalla pertaining to the business; also a quantity of soap. evidently the product of this antique "soapery." The memorable volcanic rruption, while removing a city from the face of the earth, preserved to us the evidences of a high civilization.

Habit In Appetite.

The so called cravings of apperite are purely the result of habit. A babli once acquired and persistently followed as soon has us in its grasp, and then any deviation therefrom temporally disturbs our playslological equitiforium. The system makes complaint, and we experience a craving that to which the body has become a craving a fit to which the body has become a craving of the long run distinct; in juriour to the welfare of the body. There habits or her labits of life, change the whole order of cravings, thus demon strating that the latter are purely are ficial and that they have no necessary connection with the welfare or need of the body. In other words, dieter requirements are to be founded no upon so called instinct and craving but upon reason and intelligence.—Bus sell H. Chittenden in Century. The origin of soap is a mystery, but we have many evidences of its antiqui-ty. It is mentioned at least twice in the face of the earth, preserved to us the evidences of a high civilization.

A Kind Voice.

There is no power of love so hard to get and to keep as a kind voice. A kind hand is deaf and dumb. It may be rough in fleah and blood, yet do the work of a soft heart and do it with a soft touch. But there is no one thing that love so much needs as a sweet voice to tell what it means and feels, and it is hard to get and keep it in the right tone. One must start in youth and be on the watch night and day, at work and at play, to get and keep a voice that shall speak at all times the thoughts of a kind heart. It is often in youth that one gets a voice or a tone youth that one gets a voice or a tone that is sharp, and it sticks to him through life and stirs up ill will and grief and falls like a drop of gall on the sweets of home. Watch it day by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in days to come than the best pearl hid in the seas. A kind voice is to the hearf what light is to the eye. It is a light that sings as well as shines.-Ellhu Burritt.

Students Must Have High Ideals

Whatever the student's bent, what ever his ultimate intention in the way of practice may be, the same simple rules will hold good. He must be ear nest in his desire to learn, and he must never be contented with partially un-derstanding. He must be methodical working according to a plan and ready to sacrifice his personal pleasures and comforts to carry out that plan. And he must keep before him a high ideal of his professional duties, ever remembering that his mission is to prevent dis and heal the sick. He has joined an altruistic profession, one where the rewards are often incommensurate altogether with the labors, but one where his power of doing good if thoroughly ind intelligently exerted will be great-er than it would be in any other walk of life.-London Lancet.

The Practical Joker. See the practical joker. He is not a much of a sight, but still he is worth looking at as a curiosity, as a study in uncommon cussedness. The practical joker is the offspring of asininity run to seed. He is what was left over after the rest of the world was created. There was a slight surplus, a merefraction, not enough to make a com-plete man, so the scraps were scraped up, pressed together and molded into a practical joker. The job was not patented. Nobody thinks enough of the invention to patent it. You couldn't sell practical jokers for 3 cents a bunch if you should stand out on the corner and spiel till your vocal cords got tied into double bowknots. The public is aware of the shell game when it sees the layout. The practical joker is an escaped allot from the Idiotville asy ium, but he is by no means a harmles idiot. When recognized, he should be roped forthwith and hauled back to his native and natural environment, the padded cell.-Portland Oregonian.

A Spool of Thread.

To make a spool of thread, says a manufacturer, is a complicated process Only the very best cotton can be used for this purpose. The cotton is taken in the raw state and torn all to pieces by a machine called a breaker. It then goes through several other machines, by which it is carefully combed and freed from impurities. A machine called a slipper takes it up and twists it out into soft white yaru. This is carefully combed again, and it is taken into another department, where sev-eral small strands of this yarn are twisted into one fine one. Three of these are twisted together, and you then have six cord thread, which, after
